

Abstract

A boat including a hull, a floor supported within the hull and a storage region positioned beneath the floor. An opening is provided through the floor for accessing the storage region. The opening is covered by a hatch. A component carrier is 5 positioned within the storage region. The component carrier rides along a guide structure that guides the component carrier between first and second positions within the storage region.